

ESET vs. Kaspersky: Why ESET is the clear choice

The U.S. government has banned use of Kaspersky software by civilian and defense government agencies. The FCC has added Kaspersky to a list of companies deemed to pose an unacceptable risk to national security.

- ✓ Kaspersky has a heavy footprint and causes noticeable system slowdowns based on third party reviews. End users don't even notice ESET running
- ✓ The Kaspersky administrative console is difficult to use, while reviewers give ESET high marks for its ease of management
- ✓ ESET is easier to do business with and provides a better quality of support. Kaspersky users report problems with billing and extra charges for additional support
- ✓ Kaspersky reviewers report more false positives and blocking of legitimate applications, while ESET has low false positives and lets applications run smoothly
